IN 100 YEARS - STARTING NOW

Some think that there is only a 50 per cent chance that the human species will survive the 21st Century – but as long as we do not only have one future, the future is ours to create. The question is how we can sustain, develop and enrich human existence given the limited resources available?

The background for this exhibition is the futures studies project “In 100 Years – starting now” about sustainable societies in the long run. 170 experts and visionaries were engaged in making the two mindset scenarios: “Man Made World” and “Power of Nature”. The project was developed by House of Futures and supported by The VELUX FOUNDATION.

SCENARIO #1:

MAN MADE WORLD

We realize that when we put our minds to it, we can develop and prosper in ways that do not jeopardize Planet Earth.

SCENARIO #2:

POWER OF NATURE

We realize that everything is nature, and so are we. We are one with Mother Earth, and we share a collective consciousness.

SCENARIO #1:

MAN MADE WORLD

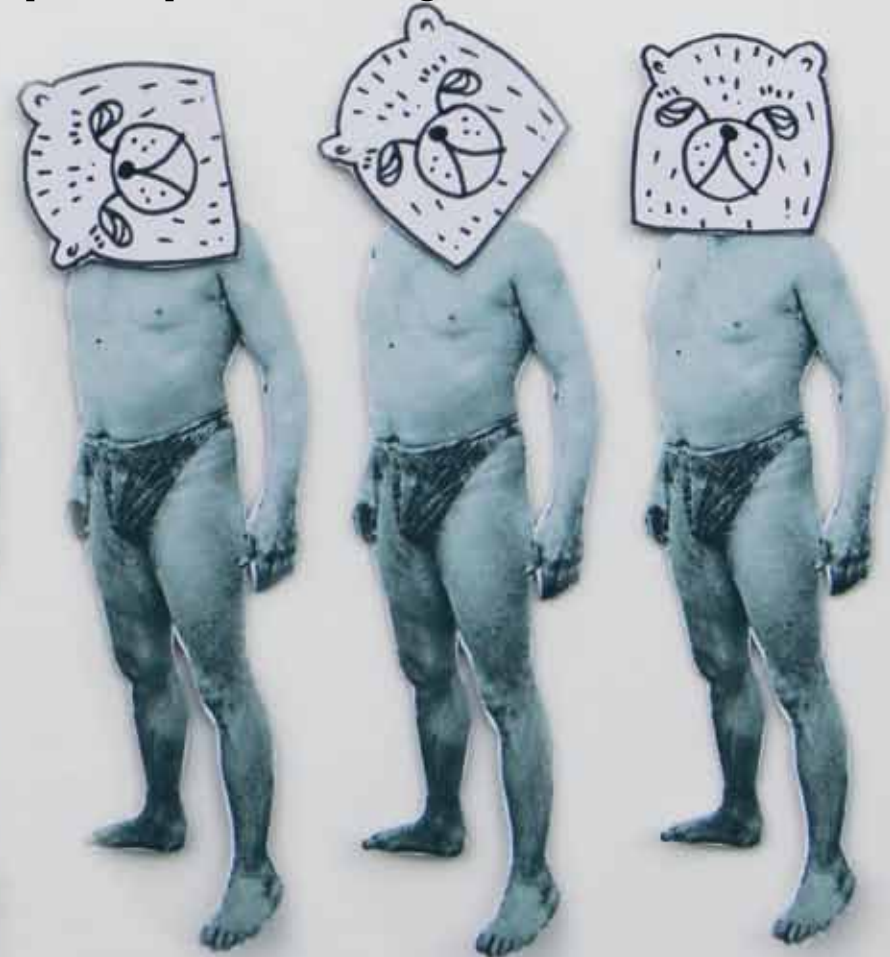

We can manage our planet and resources rationally like any landowner would his property.

SCENARIO #2:

POWER OF NATURE

We know that nature is always generous. The give and take principle is our guidance.

IN 100 YEARS - STARTING NOW

In futures studies we work with three P's: the Possible, the Probable, and the Preferred futures. The two mindset scenarios developed in the project "In 100 Years – starting now" are preferred futures of sustainable societies in 100 years.

Imagining what the world could look like in 100 years is practically a fool's errand. Still, we have an obligation to try and the possibility of creating a future worth living.

Let us begin today.
